FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Inteset is on the Hot List

Hanover, MA – September 13, 2005 – Inteset, creators of the Denzel TPS420-SD, has just learned that their flagship home theater system is going to be receiving another award. The Denzel is an advanced home entertainment system that packs power, versatility and simplicity into a single device.

The judges at TechLiving magazine have selected the Denzel as a must-have item on their 2005 Hot List, which will be published in the November/December issue of TechLiving. On the heels of receiving a 2005 Product of the Year award from Electronic House Magazine, Inteset is pleased to accept this second note of achievement.

“We have used feedback received from dealers and integrators over the past couple of years to fine tune the Denzel” says Jeff Lloyd, president of Inteset LLC, “it is very exciting that these panels have deemed second generation Denzel worthy of these honors.”

Inteset, LLC, headquartered in Hanover, Massachusetts, offers high-quality home entertainment convergence systems. Since its inception in 2003, Inteset has focused on creating robust products that combine home entertainment components into one unit removing clutter and simplifying the user experience.

Inteset systems appeal to A/V dealers and integrators for reliability, ease-of-use, unique entertainment modules and services, price point, and interoperability with advanced control systems. With Inteset's foresight and ingenuity, it is quickly becoming a leader in the new age of audio and video digital home entertainment equipment.
